COST

$50,000

PROJECT DESCRIPTION

This program consists of conducting Share the Road and Share the Path checkpoints on Marin streets and paths. Checkpoints occur with local law enforcement to educate road and path users about their shared rights and responsibilities. Audiences include motorists, bicyclists, and pedestrians.

For the Share the Road program, street corners with a standard stop sign are typically selected as checkpoint locations, so all road users are obligated to stop. Another method is to channel motorists into a coned area. At the checkpoint, uniformed officers and volunteers provide literature in a friendly atmosphere about the ways everyone, including bicyclists and motorists, can safely and conscientiously share the roads. Handouts contain California Vehicle Code information, Codes of Conduct for bicyclists and motorists to foster respect for each other, plus safety and courtesy tips.

Share the Path checkpoints occur on designated paths throughout Marin County. In addition to educational and safety literature, the checkpoints include free water, energy bars, and flat tire patch kits. The Share the Path program is taking inspiration from the Burma Shave roadside campaigns of the 1940's and 50's. Burma Shave, a popular shaving lotion in that era, would set up small, similar signs, with a rhyme and punchline at intervals along American highways. As speed limits and automobile speeds increased, the small signs had a difficult time being read, and were eventually phased out. This type of signage is perfectly suited towards the slower speeds of bicyclists and pedestrians along a Marin paths.

Modeled after Burma Shave signs, these signs are examples used for the Share the Path Program.

An additional element of the Share the Path program is the Lights On campaign. During this campaign, Walk Bike Marin staff distribute free front and rear bicycle lights and encourage Marin residents to bring their bicycles to an event and have staff install the lights. Staff also explain laws as it applies to riding a bicycle at night, and distributing forms explaining the laws in both Spanish and English. This program occurs seasonally, in the Fall, during the switch from daylight savings time.
